Before her journey to Hawai'i, Pele's mother gave her an egg that held her baby sister, Hi'iakaikapoliopele. Pele made her home on the island of Hawai'i, it was here that she raised her sister Hi'iaka who grew into a beautiful young lady.

One day Pele called for Hi'iaka. Pele told Hi'iaka that she was very tired. She asked Hi'iaka to stay by her side as she goes to sleep. While Pele slept Hi'iaka sat, waving her kāhili over Pele.

As Pele slept she heard the sounds of voices and the beating of a pahu. It sounded so beautiful that she followed the sounds in her dream.

In her dream she traveled to Kaua'i where she saw people gathered. There in the crowd—was a really handsome kāne Lohi'auipo, an ali'i who lived there on Kaua'i at Hā'ena.

In her dream, Pele returned from Kaua'i back to Kīlauea. She awoke and asked Hi'iaka to go to Hā'ena in Kea'au on Hawai'i island and fetch their sisters.

Hi'iakaikapoliopele leaves to get the other sisters. She arrives at Hā'ena and tells the sisters that Pele wants them home.

Draw a picture of Pele and Hi'iaka talking.

The sisters return home but Hi'aka asks Pele if she may return to Hā'ena to spend time with Hōpoe, her best friend.

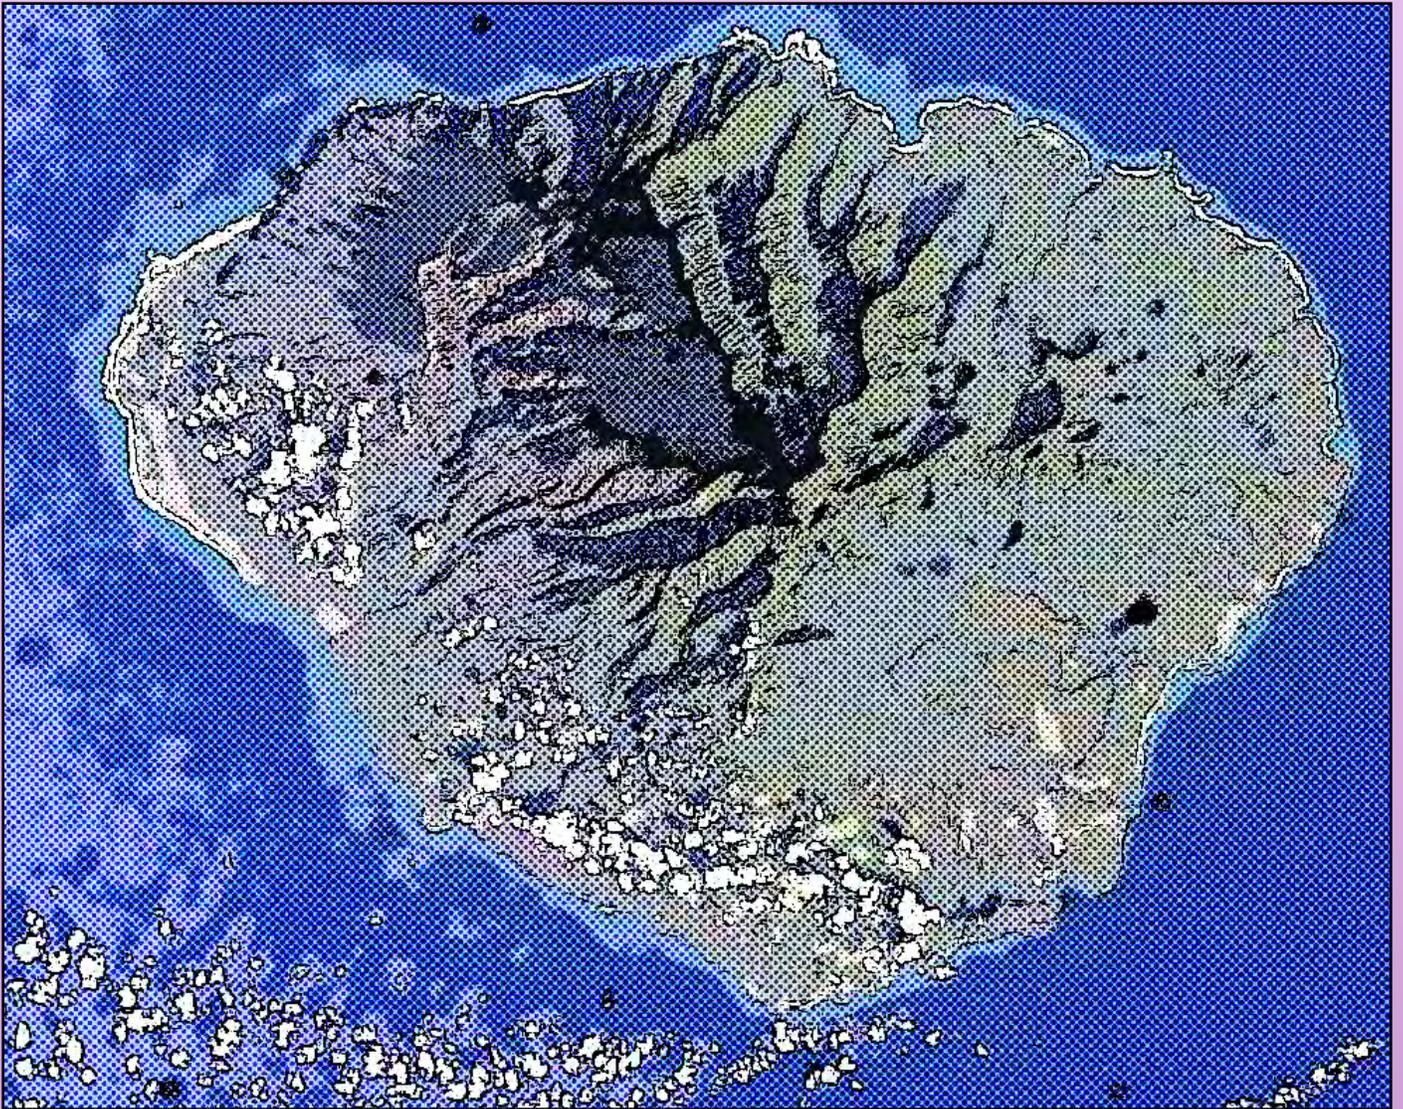

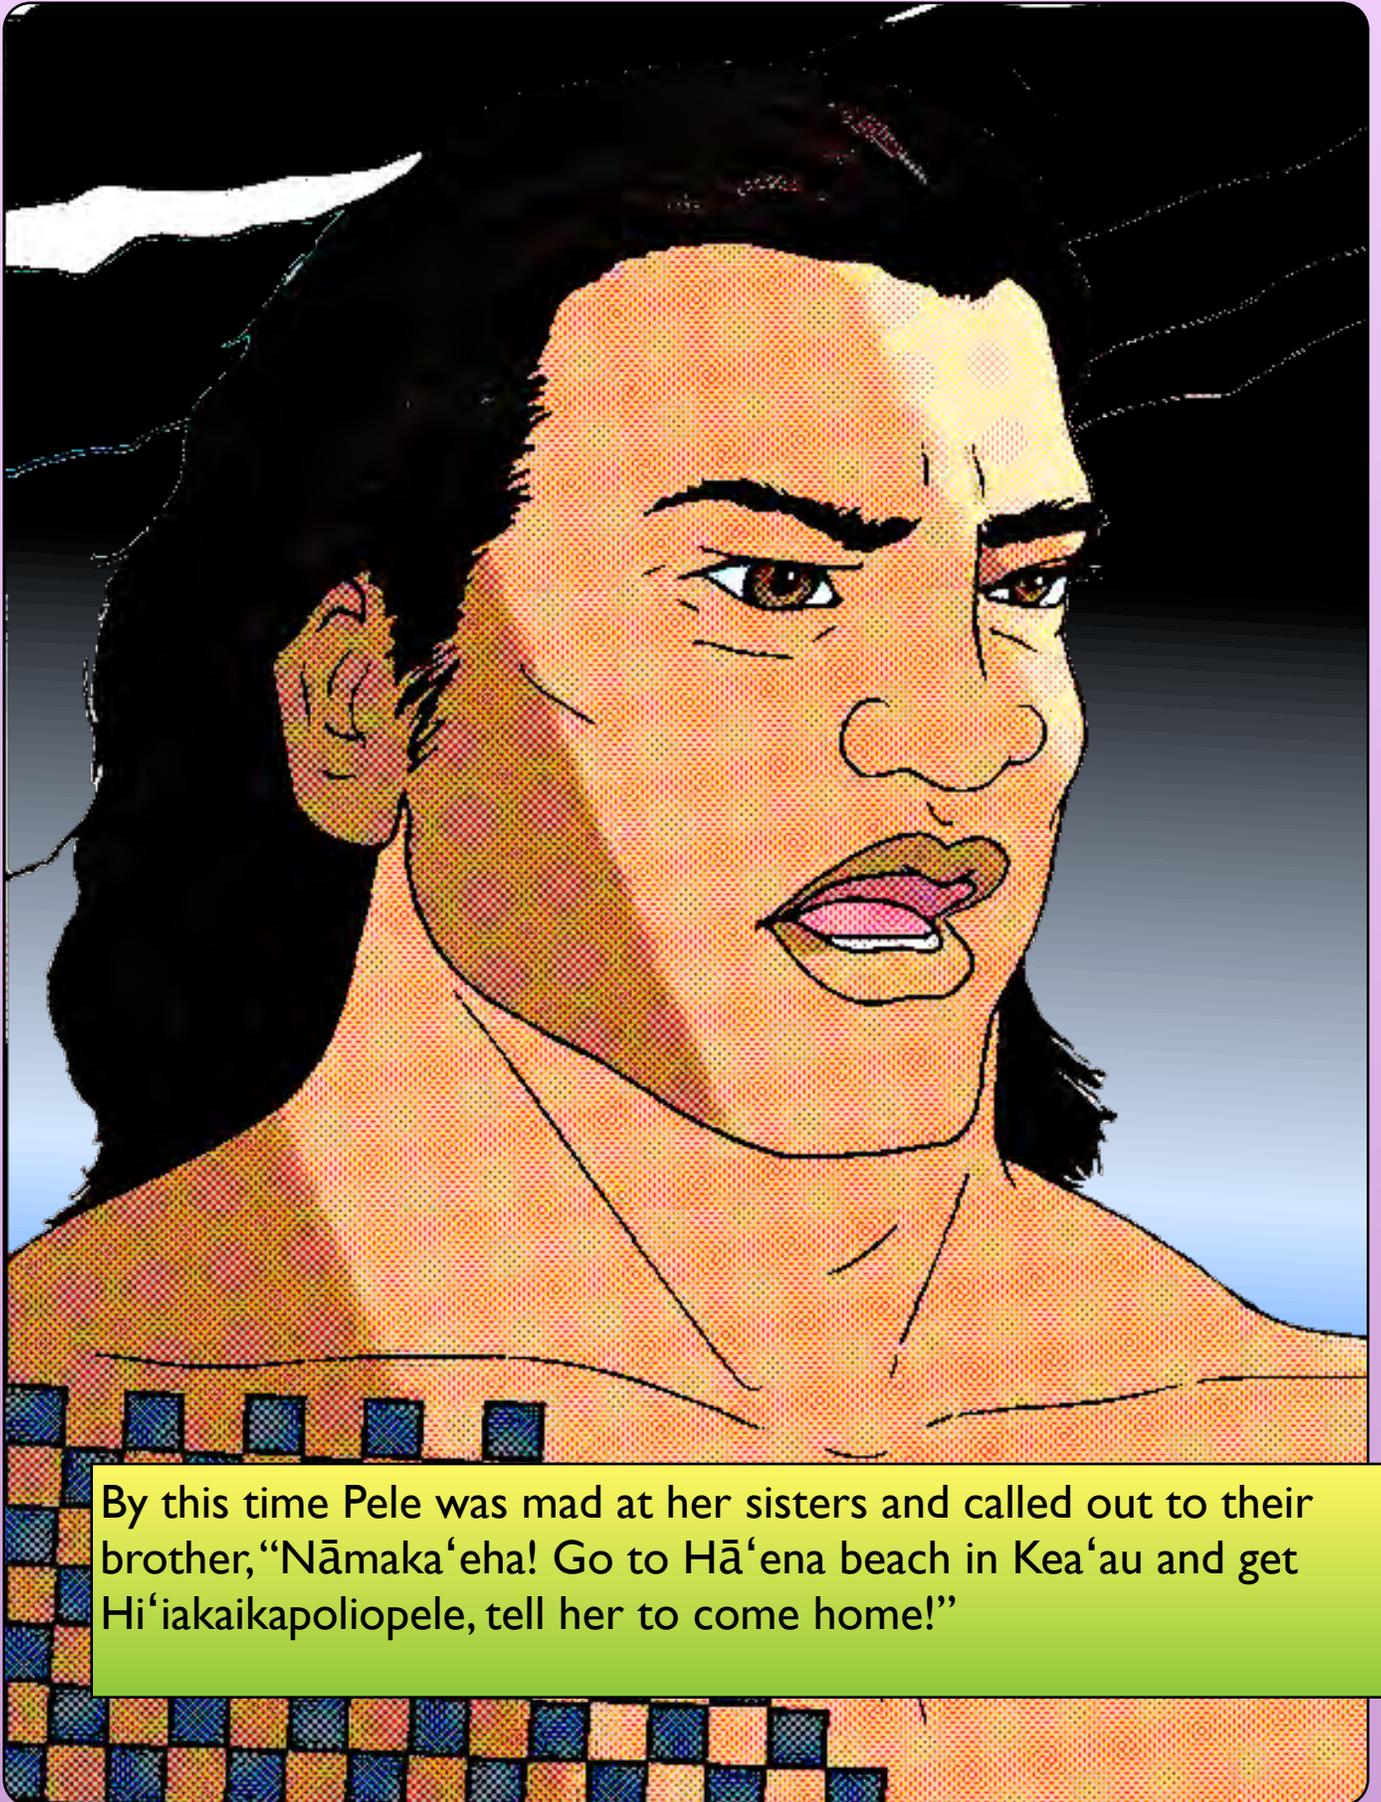

Pele lets Hi'iaka return to Hā'ena to spend time with her friend Hōpoe. Before Hi'iaka leaves Pele tells her, "if I send someone for you, you need to come home immediately" Hi'iaka agrees.

Pele told the sisters a story of her dream. She told them about this handsome man named Lohi'auipo who she wanted to marry... She asked the sisters to go to Kauai to get him and bring him back to her.

All of the sisters refused
To help Pele. They were Afraid to go Kava'i because it
Was a dangerous Journey

By this time Pele was mad at her sisters and called out to their brother, “Nāmaka‘eha! Go to Hā‘ena beach in Kea‘au and get Hi‘iakaikapoliopole, tell her to come home!”

Nāmaka‘eha could take the form of electricity or a spark of energy. In a flash, he was down at Hā‘ena where he found Hi‘iaka and Hōpoe surfing.

Pele Summons Hi'iaka

Storyteller: In this part of the mo'olelo, Pele has found who the mysterious voices belong to. She asks her sisters for a favor. Only one sister agrees to help her.

Narrator: Just as fast as Pele's spirit left to follow the beautiful sounds to Hā'ena, Kaua'i, in a flash of light she returned to her body. Hi'iaka stayed by Pele's side waving her kāhili over Pele the whole time Pele's spirit was traveling.

Pele: Hi'iaka, go to Hā'ena beach and tell your sisters go back home to Kīlauea.

Hi'iaka: 'Ae, Tita, I'll be right back.

Storyteller: Hi'iaka goes to the beach to fetch her sisters.

Sister 1: Did Pele send you to get us?

Hi'iaka: 'Ae...it's time to go!

Sister 1: Aww, but I'm not pau swimming yet!

Hi'iaka: C'mon we got to go... NOW! Pele will be mad if we don't come now!

Sister 1: Okay, I'm coming.

Hi'iaka: Don't worry, I'll come back later and swim with my friend, Hōpoe..

Narrator: The sisters returned home to Pele.

Hi'iaka: Tita, Can I go back to Hā'ena and hang out with my friend, Hōpoe?

Pele: Okay, Hi'iaka, stay as long as you want but if I send somebody for you, you need to come home right away.

Hi'iaka: 'Ae, mahalo Tita!

Narrator: Once the sisters reached Kīlauea, they gathered around Pele.

Pele: Sisters.. I'm in love! I saw a handsome man in my dream. He's a real person. His name is Lohi'auipo and he lives in Kaua'i. I want one of you to go to Kaua'i and bring him to me.

Sister 2: Are you crazy? You fell in love with a man in your dreams and now you expect us to go all the way to Kaua'i and get him? No way.

Pele: (Gasps and looks at her sister in shock) One of you just go get him for me!

Sister 2: What are you thinking? How dare you ask me to do this. You know I don't have powers like you to protect me. Plus, how am I going to get to Kaua'i... You know it's a dangerous journey!

Narrator: Pele was angry at all of her sisters because not one of them was willing to get Lohi'auipo for her. Pele turned away from her sisters and called out to one of her brothers.

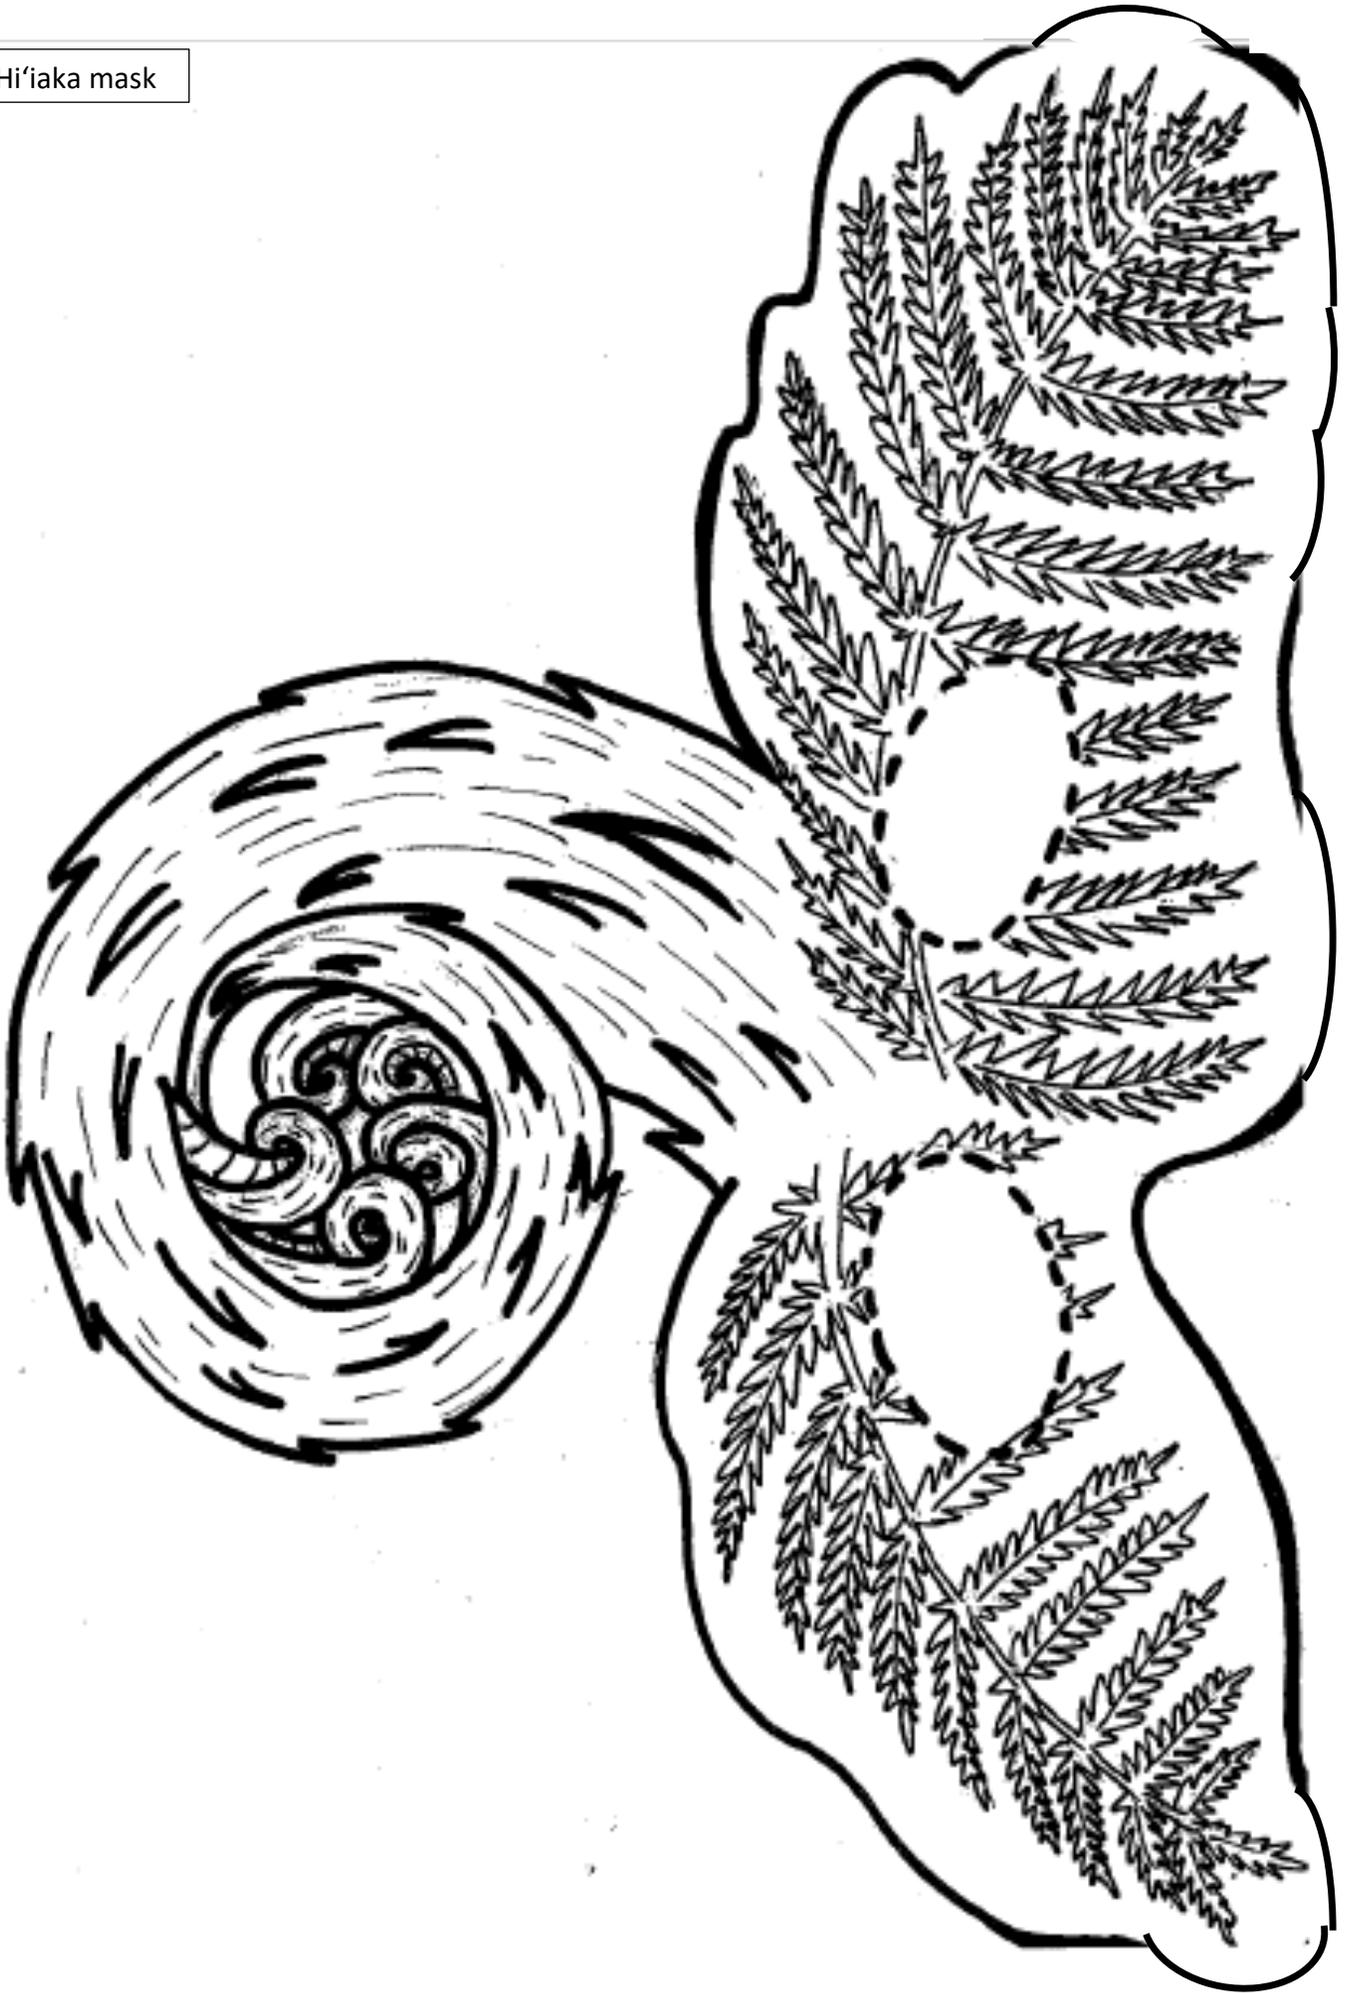

Pele: Nāmaka'ehaikalani!

Nāmaka'eha: 'Ae, Tita?

Pele: Go get our sister, Hi'iaka! She's in Kea'au at Hā'ena beach.

Nāmaka'eha: 'Ae, Tita, I'll be right back.

Hāpu'u pulu

Aloha, my name is Kahu. I am a hāpu'u pulu, an endemic tree fern. Endemic means I am found in Hawai'i and nowhere else in the world! Unlike ferns found on the forest floor, I grow tall like a tree. You can tell me apart from other Hawaiian tree ferns because I have soft, golden hair or pulu growing on my frond stalks. I play an important role in the forest because my trunk provides habitat that helps to nurture lots of keiki plants.
