KAMEHAMEHA SCHOOLS FOUNDERS

KE ALI'I BERNICE PAUAHI PĀKĪ BISHOP (1831-1884)

Pauahi Pākī was born Dec. 19, 1831, in Honolulu, Hawai'i to high chiefs Abner Pākī and Laura Kōnia Pākī. Pauahi was the great-granddaughter of Kamehameha I, the warrior chief who united all the islands of Hawai'i under his rule in 1810.

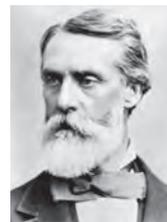

As the last royal descendant of the Kamehameha line, Pauahi inherited thousands of acres of land, much of it from the estate of her cousin Princess Ruth Ke'elikōlani. Her inheritance, about 9 percent of the island chain's total acreage, made Pauahi the largest landholder in the kingdom.

When Pauahi was born in 1831, the native population numbered about 124,000. When she wrote her will in 1883, only 44,000 Hawaiians remained. She believed education could offer her people hope and a future, and she left her entire estate for the education of Hawai'i's children.

At the time of Pauahi's death on October 16, 1884, her estate comprised some 375,500 acres of land assessed at about $474,000. Her will establishes the Kamehameha Schools and her lands and property endow the schools.

Three years later, in 1887, the Kamehameha Schools was dedicated.

CHARLES REED BISHOP (1822-1915)

Charles Reed Bishop, husband of Kamehameha Schools founder Bernice Pauahi Bishop, was the driving force that brought his wife's wishes to fruition, and he is honored as the founder of the Preparatory Department at Kapālama.

Born January 25, 1822, in Glens Falls, New York, he came to Hawai'i in 1846.

Bishop met Pauahi while she was still a student at the Chiefs' Children's School and he married her on June 4, 1850.

Bishop was one of five trustees named by Pauahi to manage her estate, and as co-executor of her will, he set in motion the process that resulted in the establishment of the Kamehameha Schools in 1887.

Bishop contributed his own funds for the construction of several of the schools' initial buildings on the original Kalihi campus: the Preparatory Department facilities (1888), Bishop Hall (1891) and Bernice Pauahi Bishop Memorial Chapel (1897).

In addition, he founded and endowed the Bernice Pauahi Bishop Museum in 1889 as an enduring memorial to his wife. He died in San Francisco, Calif., in 1915.
